STATINTL

8. [redacted] Arthur Olsen, in the Bureau of European Affairs of State Department, called on H.R. 2138, the Rodino bill. He wanted advice preparatory for his appearance before the Feighan Subcommittee on possible classified questions. I indicated this point had been discussed with the Subcommittee clerk, the Chairman, and several of the members with the view that if any questions were raised, the witness could, on an off-the-record basis, request that this be handled in an executive session. Mr. Olsen understood this and thought that this was all he needed.

9. [redacted] Talked with Senator Milton Young asking his advice on the letter to the Director from Senator Thurmond dated 16 August. After reading the letter, the Senator agreed that this was a difficult situation and suggested that possibly the best way would be for a senior official of the Agency to speak with Thurmond on this.
